Cotton Market Shows Advance in the Face of Bearish News.

NEW YORK, October 18 .- In spite NEW YORK, October 18.—In spite of the fact that the variations in domestic wheat markets were extremely spasmodic early in the week, prices did not swing far in either direction. It often seemed that a sharp break was imminent, but a rally almost immediately took place and prevented an important loss. To many the prevailing heaviness indicated that a great many who had been holding for nigher prices were endeavoring to unload, being discouraged, doubtless, by the larger supplies in practically all positions. arger supplies in practically all posi-

Export Inquiry and War Rumors. Export Inquiry and War Russics.

The principal feature in this respot, was the failure of the spring wheat movement to diminish as much as had been predicted, and liberal arrivals in the Northwest led to a large increase in our wistble supply. As there was a simultaneous enlargement of supplies in European markets, the total quantity available areas showed an increase. In European markets, the total quantity available again showed an in awally heavy increase. It is evident that these huge accretions in stocks have caused a subsidence of the buying ardor recently displayed by European grain men, it being stated by exporters here that orders have become much smaller, most of them recently received being too far out of line with local conditions to permit of execution.

local conditions to permit of execution.

They predict, furthermore, that the large quantities put affoat recently by exporting countries have engendered the belief among European buyers that there is no necessity for extensive purchases on their part for some weeks to come. In view of this subsidence in the export inquiry the opinion prevailed that there was little likelihood of hostilities in Europe. It was generally agreed that the larger European nations had the matter sufficiently in hand to prevent actual warfare, with the possible exception of some of the smaller Balkan principalities. The chief influence which prevented a more important decline was the fact that advices continued to state that the winter wheat outlook was extremely unsatisfactory because of the unbroken drought. Not only was it claimed that the area would be much smaller in many localities, but it was also asserted that the lack of moisture prevented the proper germination of seec already in the ground.

Recovery Towards the Close.

Late in the week there was a temporary further sagging trend, followed almost immediately by a sharp recovery. This was attributed partly to reports of frost in Manitoba, and partly to additional and more emphatic advices from accredited sources in the West, respecting the poor outlook for winter wheat consequent upon the drought.

look for winter wheat consequent upon the drought.

As a result, farmers are making only small deliveries to country stations, being dissatisfied with current bids, and therefore it is the consensus of opinion that receipts at primary points next week will show appreciable diminution. There was renewed talk respecting the possibility of political complications in Europe late in the week, but, in the main, traders were decidedly skeptical, especially as they were in receipt of almost no export orders at reasonable limits. Hence it is expected that the exports from Atlantic and Guif ports will show a falling off within the next week or two, but this should create no surprise, in view of the unexpectedly large shipments thus far this season. thus far this season.

Irregular Movement of Wheat.

Irregular Movement of Wheat.

The corn market was inactive and weak. Buyers have been extremely timid, while offerings were much larger, and consequently prices have steadily weakened. Scilling was stimulated mainly by the prolonged dry and mild weather West, which has been of great benefit in curing the crop, and a large percentage of it is said to be superior in every respect to a year ago. Therefore, it is the natural assumption that farmers' deliveries, wilk soon show material enlargement, a decidedly gratifying feature, as for weeks, if not months, business has been almost at a standstill in some quarters, because of the great scarcity and high cost. Toward the close there was a slight reward the close there was a slight recovery, which was partly chargeable to predictions of rain in the West, and somewhat disappointing receipts and somewhat disappointing receipts at interior points.

Extent of the Advance.

The maximum advance in the genral option list figures out about 30 32 points or the equivalent of 81.50 er bale. The highest prices were eached at the close of the market Satraday, when the December option goit it 8.86, January 8.71, March 8.61, and fay 8.75. These prices represent with at 8.86. January 8.71. March 8.61, and fay 8.52. These prices represent within 10 to 15 points of the highest reached in the last two months. Spot coton has advanced 4 to 36 cent at most pints, with last week's publicly reporting ales at New Orleans, Savannah and alveston each approximating 25,000 ales, and over 30,000 bales at Memhis.

BUSINESS GOOD.

From All Parts of United States Comes News of Industrial Activity. NEW YORK, October 18.—The Na-tional Association of Manufacturers tional Association of Manufacturers announced to-day that every branch of industry is showing marked increases of business, and that during the past three months the trade conditions have taken on new activity. A canvass among the 3,000 members of the association bears out the prediction that practically every manufacturing business will be upon a normal basis of production during 1909.

American Industries, the official porgan of the National Association of Manufacturers, prints in the current issue hundreds of letters from leading members of the United States, which are the results of a canvass among the numerous manufacturing trades. This resume, covering the entire country, shows that present conditions of trade in the majority of industries are fair, and that the possibilities of an increase during the coming year are good.

The items scheduled are iron, and

NEW YORK, October 18.—Ada Rehan, who has not played a part for about five years, has arrived from Southampton abourd the American liner Philadelphia, bringing a pet spaniel that has crossed the Atlantic in her charge sixteen times.

Miss Rehan said she thought she would never go back to the stage, although her health had improved greatly while she had been stopping at her home in the north of England. She remarked that the plays of to-day were different from those in which she had been schooled, and she believed the professions had not gained by the change.
